Support local farmers and enjoy the freshest produce, dairy, and artisan goods from your community.
Inter/Space Grotesk typography used for the hero heading — modern and highly legible at large sizes
Shop Now
The "Shop Now" button is placed centrally beneath the tagline to guide the user towards the core action of the site without overwhelming them with choices
The light green-tinted background was chosen to subconsciously communicate freshness and nature, reinforcing GLH's local food identity before the user reads a single word

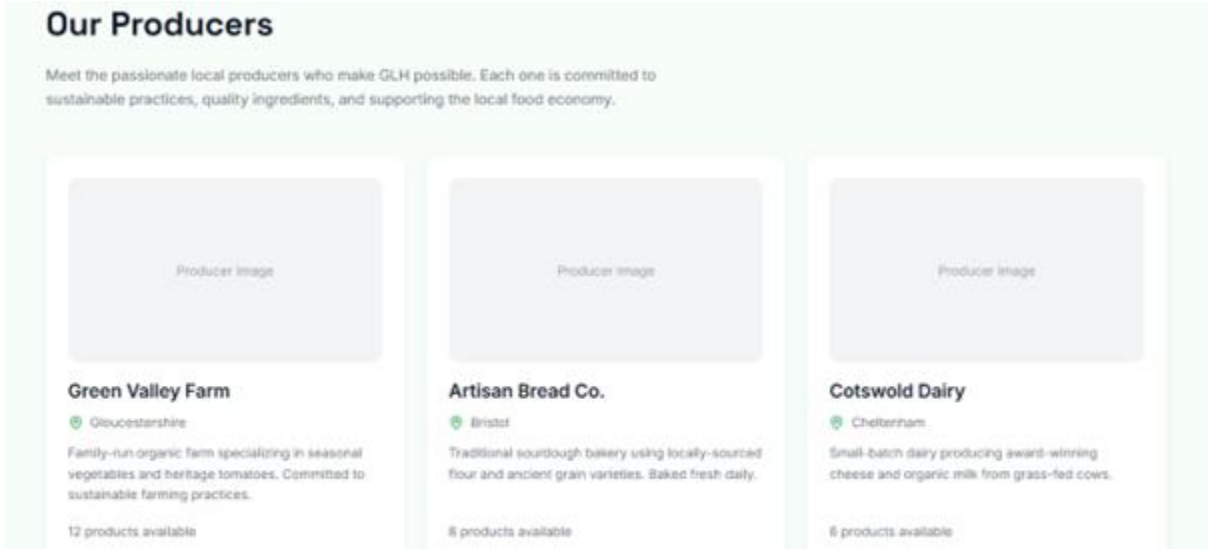
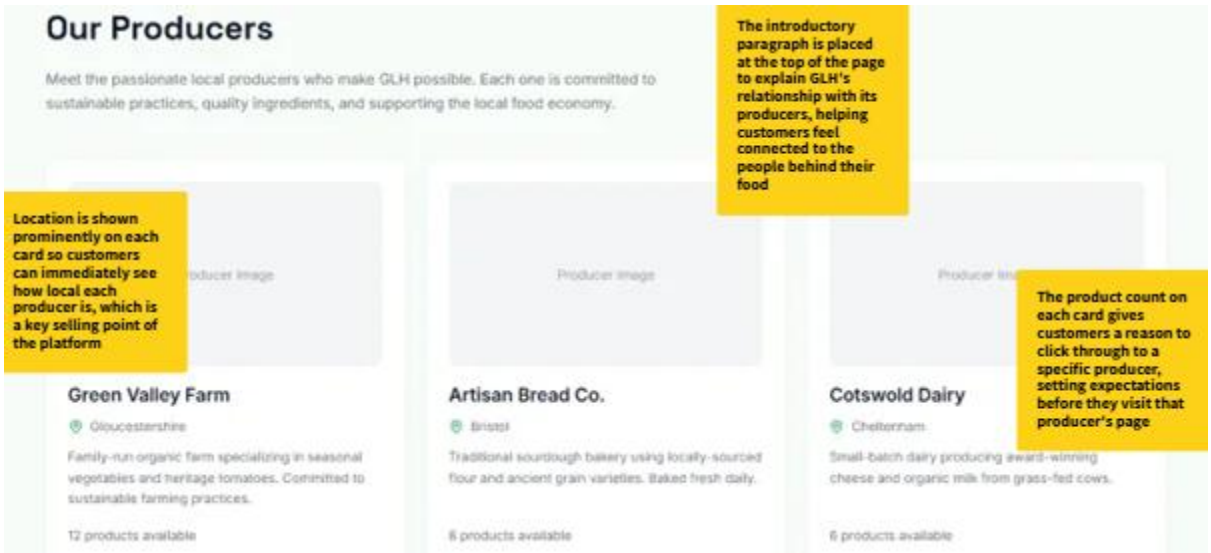
The filter sidebar is placed on the left as users are accustomed to this layout from major e -commerce sites, making the experience immediately intuitive
Navigation links are centred in the navbar so they are always accessible regardless of what page the user is on, reducing navigation friction
The search bar is at the top of the filter panel so users who know exactly what they want can find it instantly without scrolling through categories
The active filter is highlighted in green so users always know what they are currently browsing, preventing confusion when the product list changes
Category filters allow users to narrow down products quickly, reducing the time spent searching and improving the overall shopping experience

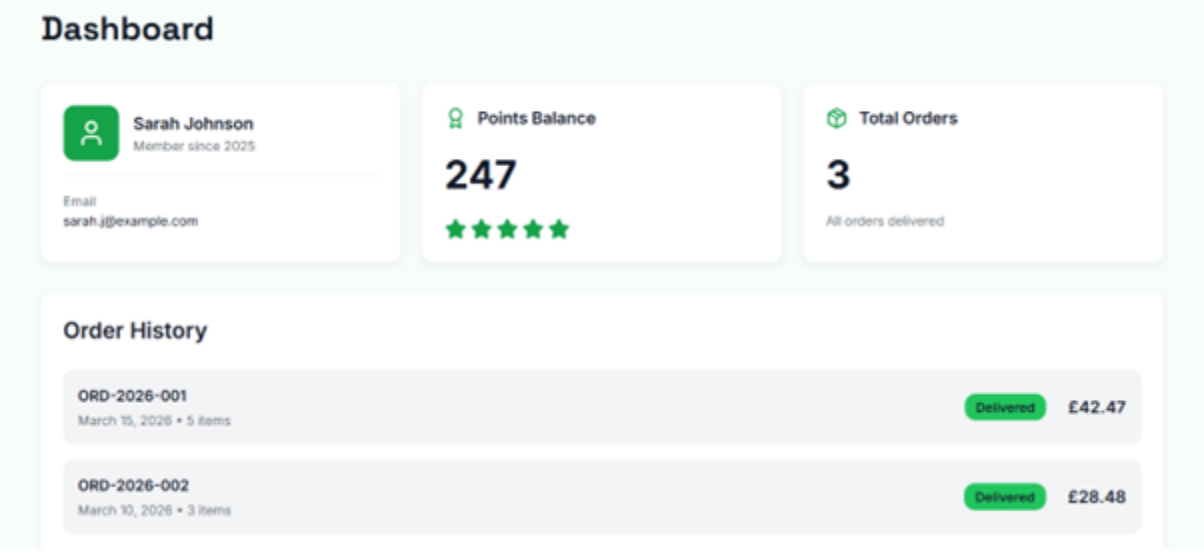
Producers page





The producers page exists to strengthen the trust and connection between customers and GLH as a local food marketplace. An introductory paragraph sits at the top of the page explaining GLH's relationship with its producers, ensuring customers understand the values behind the platform before browsing individual businesses.

Customer Dashboard



The customer dashboard is the personal hub of the GLH experience, designed to give users an immediate and clear overview of their accounts. Summary cards sit at the top of the page displaying profile information. The points balance is given its own card with star icons in brand green to make the loyalty system feel visible and rewarding, encouraging repeat purchases. Order history is listed directly below the summary, placed exactly where users expect to find it. Each order row displays the reference number, date, item count, delivery status and total price, giving users everything they need to review a past order immediately.

About GLH
The about page is accessible from the main navbar so users can find background information about GLH at any point in their journey, building trust before they commit to a purchase
The mission statement is placed inside a card to give it visual prominence on an otherwise text-heavy page, ensuring it is the first thing users read
